The Second Lecture of Frederick Douglass

Was delivered in the Independent Church, Naumkeag Hall, on Tuesday evening. We give a sketch of the salient points:

The subject of the lecture was announced to be "The Designs of the Slave Power."

"American slavery, remarked the speaker, towers aloft, solitary and alone in its power, in a sense comprehending all other crimes. Its essence a system of murder. It boldly defies the marriage institution. It does away with the Bible. It sets God at naught. For women it gives the slaveholder and reach his bony fingers into the cradle, and taking thence a child, write on the ledger its name, among his hogs, horses and other property—a name that might be on the Lamb's Book of Life,—then is he prepared to do anything.

The secret of the slave power is its unity. While the North is divided with various questions, the South is united. Whenever the interests of slavery have been threatened, there has the South been wont to rally.

The slave power has these great purposes—to put down free speech—to nationalize slavery—to extend its power indefinitely—to absorb Mexico and even the South American Republics—and to expatriate from the United States the free colored people. Already have slaveholders made long strides toward this end. First, they have demoralized the old parties, so that they of the north say they mean to abolitionize Mexico, but the Democratic party resolve, "We will resist agitation;" the Whig party, more polished in their diction, say "We will discountenance agitation." Thus are you called upon to give up the right of free speech, in order that slavery may go unrebuked in its course of wrong.

Nor are these idle words; it is the solemn act of these parties. It is to be regarded as their sentiment, capable of being crystallized into Law.

The object of all this is to give peace; but God has settled this matter. The Northholder can have no peace. He sleeps on quivering heart strings. He walks abroad a thief. An avenging Nemesis follows on his track.—A thunderbolt, ready to burst, hovers above his head.

I have suffered, continued the speaker. I bear on my back the scars of cruel lacerations. I have felt the bitter, burning wrongs of slavery, yet God knows, I had rather be the most unshielded, down-trodden slave, than take on me the relation of master to a slave.

Its object is to nationalize slavery.—Look at the Fugitive Slave Law. It is the first step to nationalize slavery. Not a rood of earth in all this land, where a man may plant himself and say 'By virtue of my manhood I am free.' No valley so deep, no mountain so high, that the fugitive slave may there be free. He must still roll himself in the mire of the British Lion.

A peace-collection in Philadelphia lay for three months in Mr. Cumming's prison. While there were locked up the liberties of the nation, because those slave-laws ruled over State sovereignty. Passmore Williamson was there, not for contempt of court, but because he told a woman and her children that they were free.

Even now, Virginia has in court a suit against New York. If she gains this, it will establish the slave power in New York; for she expects to procure a decision that will enable mas ters to carry with them their slaves through free States. If this is granted, then is slavery legalized in Maine. Here they may bring their chains, their cat-o-nine-tails, their blood hounds. Here they be seen a slave gang, with fetters clanking as they pass on their way to a distant market.

To get the free Negro to Africa is work for the christian. But why send the free colored man and not the slave? The colonization scheme has no operation upon slavery. At an expense of $300,000, it has carried to Africa only 15,000 souls, while during this period the annual increase of the blacks has been not less than 100,000.

The Indian laments before your civilization. He sees the plough-share turning up the bones of his forefathers from their hallowed resting place, and he turns away. From river to lake, from lake to mountain, from mountain to desert, he retires before your civilization. We wish to have our home among you. We wish to wring from you a confession of our manhood.

The Colonization Society wears two faces. At the North its language is "We want you to do good to Africa;" at the South it says "You have among you a dangerous class. Give us your money, and we will remove them."

At the same time that your fathers landed on Plymouth rock, a cargo of slaves disembarked on the shores of Virginia. We have been here two hundred and thirty-four years. The cotton you wear has been wrung from our sweat—the sugar you consume has been produced by our toil—the rice swamp, with its death-dealing fevers, has been tilled by our labors. Why should we not stay? We are native Americans. Here we ask to stay. Here we will stay.

The speaker expressed his ardent desire for the civilization of Africa, but regarded it as properly missionary work. The lecture was preceded and followed by the singing of anti-slavery odes by Geo. W. Clark. A large audience were assembled, and listened with marked attention during the whole evening.

GREAT SALE OF LAND IN LAWRENCE.—On Thursday, Dec. 6, the Essex Company will sell at auction, by N. A. Thompson, auctioneer, 602 lots of land situated in the thriving city of Lawrence. A friend has left on our table a detailed catalogue of these lots, with their size and area, and accompanied by elaborate plans. Any one who may wish to examine them can have opportunity.

A grasshopper from Utah, was exhibited in New York last week. It was five inches long.

CLASSIFICATION OF THE MEMBERS OF CONGRESS.—The Albany Evening Journal presents a political view of the Thirty-fourth Congress, in which it says that of the members of the House 119 are claimed as being or having been members of the "American order"—that 127 are or have been democrats—while at the same time 128 are all republicans, supported and elected on the platform of opposition to slavery extension. The Americans and Republicans are in many cases identical—but it is morally certain that upon all questions relating to Freedom or Slavery, both the Know Nothings and Democrats will be divided. Now is there even any prominent question of Naturalization or of Slavery upon which the Know Nothings can act together. Neither is there any question of Democratic or Administration policy upon which the Democrats can all agree.

But upon what will be the main subjects of debate and action this winter, viz: questions growing out of Slavery Extension, the lines are marked with tolerable distinctness. For all practical purposes therefore, the House stands:

Republicans	123
All others	121

The Senate is composed of 15 Republicans and 43 of all other parties. Small is the proportion, who favor the extension of Freedom, it is larger than it has been in that body for many years.

THE KANSAS DELEGATE.—The New York Evening Post says that by a careful counting of votes in the House, a majority of sixteen appears in favor of admitting Governor Reeder as the representative from the territory of Kansas, in that body, displacing the admission of Whitfield, who brings the certificate of Governor Shannon. This includes no vote from any southern State, nor does it include the vote of Vale Kelley of Illinois, of New York, who will probably vote against the admission of either delegate.

The same paper says that the impossibility of admitting Whitfield is now apparent, and the proper course for the administration to take to extricate themselves from the difficulty in which such a decision by the House of Representatives will place them, has been a source of reason to believe, the subject of protracted and earnest consideration.

The plan which is most likely to be agreed upon by the slave state interest is to send back both delegates, so to test their claims to a seat, at the polls in Kansas. I'd give a certain aspect of fairness to the proposal, it is suggested that some of Douglas's friends should move an amendment to the Kansas bill, conferring power upon the President to protect the polls from violence by the United States soldiers, if necessary.

This amendment is an ingenious attempt to get from Congress an implied admission that the President has no power to interfere before, and was therefore excusable for his suppineness at the two last elections.

A Washington correspondent says that the President is very assiduously employed writing his message. He adds:

"It is full of sound and fury, signifying strong probability for re-election!

PROHIBITION IN NEW YORK.—The New York Tribune states with entire confidence, that after extensive inquiry, that liquor prohibition will be upheld by the New York Legislature just chosen.

☞ "Poor Shortfellow's" poem is first rate—but has rather too much of the ardent for our columns.

☞ THE GOLD.—Mrs. Swisshelm says: "The next year's crop will not yield your mother is a dangerous secret, one that will be likely to bring you sorrow."

The mild weather continued yesterday, Wednesday, and the steamer Boston came up to her wharf in this city.

New County.—A citizen's meeting has been held in Rockland to agitate the question of a new county with either Thomaston or Rockland for the shire towns. The people of that section of the State, miserably accommodated now, R. Stevens, Esq., stated:

"It would be even more convenient for us to go to the shire towns of Cumberland, Androscoggin, Sagadahoc, Kennebec, Waldo or Hancock, all of which were accessible by steamboats or railroads, than to our present shire town.

JOHN B. GOUGH IN HARTFORD.—Mr. Gough lectured in Hartford on Thursday evening. The Courant thus reports his position in regard to prohibitory liquor laws:

"His idea on this subject was just this: 'We need protection by Law from the liquor dealers, and we cannot have that protection unless the law is law of annihilation.' The times once were, that he advocated moral suasion: but he had become convinced that it is idle to attempt to move men by moral suasion, where there is nothing for moral suasion to get hold of—no basis for it to stand upon. You must reach a liquor dealer by moral suasion."

AN ECONOMICAL GOVERNMENT.—The State of Vermont with a population of over 300,000, spends about $150,000 per annum for all the expenses of government, or less than fifty cents per head for her people. She owes at the close of her fiscal year $46,695, and had funds to balance this sum to the amount of $50,852. There was in her treasury at the year's end $16,302, and her annual expenses had been $133,227. The total amount of the States expenses for military purposes is $872 which is enough to pay the cost of about six bombs at Sevastopol.

The story of a man who had a nose so large that he couldn't blow it without the use of gunpowder, is said to be a hoax.

THE KANSAS CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.—In the New York and several columns of reports of the proceedings of the late Free State Convention, but they contain little of general interest. The vote by which Mr. Delahay's resolutions endorsing the Kansas-Nebraska act were adopted, was reconsidered, and after several exciting discussion the resolutions were rejected by a vote of 19 to 13. This result was to be a victory for free-dom. On the last day the Convention adopted an article making provision for the holding of slaves now in the Territory until the 4th of July 1857.

The correspondent of the St. Louis Republican gives the following account of the scene when the question of the final adoption of the constitution was reached:

About midnight the President said: "Gentlemen—The Constitution has been read for the first time; those in favor of its passage, will signify the same by saying aye."

"Aye," shouted every delegate without exception, in a loud and enthusiastic tone.

"I move that the Constitution be read a second time by title," said Mr. Farrow.

"The Constitution of Kansas," read the Secretary.

"Those in favor of its passage," said the President, "will signify it by saying aye."

I never saw such a perfectly dramatic scene before, as I looked at when the President said so. Every delegate involuntarily held up his hand and shouted "aye," half rising as he gave his vote.

"I move that the Constitution be read by title a third time," said Mr. Delahay.

It was read a third time and again the President put the question.

An unanimous "aye" succeeded.

"The constitution is adopted," said the President.

Three cheers for the first free constitution of Kansas," said Mr. Stanyler of Coudal City!

Every delegate and spectator present raised his hat, and waving it in the air, gave three times three loud, long and hearty cheers.

As the sound of the cheering died away, the hour and minute hands of our watch were pointing at XII.

This constitution is to be submitted to the people of Kansas for ratification on the 15th of December, and if ratified, the people are to vote for State officers, Judges of the Supreme Court, and other elective offices on the third Tuesday of January next.

DECISION IN RELATION TO HARVARD DIVINITY SCHOOL.—The Supreme Court has decided adversely on the petition of the President and Fellows of Harvard College to transfer the funds in their hands for the support of the Divinity School to Harvard College into the hands of a new board independent of the College.—The Traveller says that the Court decided that it would be a dangerous precedent for it to undertake to withdraw the disposition of funds obtained by donations from various sources, which in all but two questionable instances, were given either to express terms or by necessary implication to the President and Fellows of Harvard College as a well known, established, permanent board, to hold in trust for the use of the theological school, "connected with," or "at the University."—Boston Journal.

HISTORICAL QUERY.—Whether if the Duke of Gloster snored after the terrific fashion introduced by Mr. Forrest on Friday night, the ghost of Queen Anne spoke more than simple truth in saying,

"Richard, thy wife that wretched Anne,
Thy wife,
That never slept a quiet hour with thee."

Atlas.

The Boston Chronicle thinks that recent events in that city may soon lead one to expect the street-cry of—"Cowhide Sir!" "Cowhide!"—"Man been speaking to your wife, Sir!" "Wife seen in Commissioner's, Sir!" "Only one shilling!"—"Here's your big Cowhides!!" etc., etc.

CONGRESS AND NAMES.—There are in the Congress which will assemble on Monday, the 3d proximo, three Smiths, the same number of Wrights, of Campbells, of Bells, of Jonses, of Washburns, and of Millers, and fourteen other names of which there are two members bearing each the same name.

John B. Gough was mobbed upon in England with his concerts six-fold, charged at £87 10s. being the tax towards the expenses of the Russian war on his income as a lecturer, estimated at £1500.

CURIOSITY.—Looking over the affairs of others and overlooking your own.

THE GREAT EXHIBITION OF THE RUSSIAN WAR.—The provincial papers of the last four months, have been filled with notices in relation to this novel and interesting Exhibition. We understand that its enterprising proprietors Messrs. Pegrson & Ware of Boston, owing to the great success they have met with in the provinces, will sail in the next steamer for England. Prior to its departure they will, on their return to B., exhibit three nights in this city and in Portland, probably the last of this week. It will open at Norombega Hall.

The following we clip from the British North American:

PANORAMA OF THE RUSSIAN WAR.—The feldon has's work of art visited our city, that has produced the interest, and created such an excitement as the Panorama of the Russian War, now on exhibition at the Temperance Hall.—Since it was opened, the Hall has been crowded with large and fashionable audiences. This magnificent work of art is well worthy the patronage bestowed upon it, and we but endorse the views of all the provincial journals (where it has been exhibited), when we say that it is the most correct and truthful work of its kind that has ever visited this city. Commencing on the Danube the beholder sees the different towns, citadels, fortifications of the Turks, from the town of Widder down to the mouth of the Danube, a splendid view of Constantinople, the destruction of the Turkish fleet at Sinope. The departure of the English, French and Turkish fleets for the Baltic and Crimea, bombardment of Sinope Odessa and Sebastopol. Following the course of the war to the Crimea, we have a magnificent view of Sebastopol, and its present scene of attack, most truthfully given, showing the forts, batteries, and fortifications of the enemy. The entrenchments, redoubts, and fortifications of the allied army, on the heights and before Sebastopol.—The great battles of Alma, Balaclava, and Inkermann; The gallant charge of the Scots Greys and Light Cavalry. The sketches, some two hundred in number, have all been taken upon the spot, and may be relied upon as perfectly correct and true. We have neither time nor space to portray the many points of interest in this great work of Art, but will merely say, go and see for yourselves. We understand that Mr. Warren will shortly leave Halifax for England, for the purpose of obtaining new sketches of the late events that have taken place in the Crimea. Mr. E. H. Packard, as a lecturer, has but few equals. He seems to be thoroughly conversant with the history and position of Europe, who, together with Mr. Chandler, the eminent ballad Singer, greatly enhances the interest of the exhibition.

ANOTHER REMARKABLE CURE.—A lady residing in Newton has just written Warren & Ayer, proprietors of Dr. Ayer's new remedies, that she has been materially benefitted by the use of Dr. Warren's Inhaling Balm, which is fast succeeding all other modes of treatment of lung diseases. Burrill, Perry, Boston, are General agents. They have Warren's celebrated Compound of Cod Liver Oil.

The Lost Boy—A Story of the Ohio Penitentiary.

The editor of the Sandusky Mirror was formerly Warden of the Ohio Penitentiary. He gives the following as one of the incidents which occurred while he had the control of that institution:

I had been a few months in charge of the Prison, when my attention was attracted to, and a deep interest felt, in the numerous boys and young men, who were confined therein and permitted to work in the same shops with old and hardened convicts. This interest was increased on every evening, as I saw them congregate in gangs, marching to their silent meals, and thence to their gloomy bed-rooms which are more like living sepulchres with iron shrouds, than sleeping apartments. These young men and boys being generally the shortest in height, brought up the rear of the companions, as they marched to the terrible lockstep, and consequently, most easily attracted attention. To see many youthful forms and bright countenances mingled with the old and hardened scoundrels, whose visages betokened vice, malice and crime, was sickening to the soul. But there was one among the boys, a lad of about seventeen years of age, who had particularly attracted my attention; not from anything superior in his countenance or general appearance, but by the look of utter despair which ever sat upon his brow, and the silent, uncomplaining manner in which he submitted to all the hardships and degradations of prison life. He was often complained of by both officers and men, and I thought unnecessarily, for light and trival offences against the rules of propriety; yet he seldom had any excuse or apology, and never denying a charge, he took the reprimand and once the punishment, without a fear or a murmur, almost as a matter of course, seeming thankful that it was no worse. He had evidently seen better days, and enjoyed the light of home, parents and friends, if not the luxuries of life. But the light of hope seemed to have gone out—his health was poor—his face pale—his frame fragile, and no fire beamed in his dark grey eyes. I thought every night I saw him march to his gloomy bed, that I would go to him and learn his history—but there were so many duties to perform, so much to learn, and do, that day after day passed, and I would neglect him—having merely learned that his name was Arthur Lamb, and that his crime was burglary and larceny, indicating a very bad boy, or one so young. He had already been there a year, and had two more to serve. He never could outlive his sentence, and his countenance indicated he felt it. He worked at stone-cutting on the State House—hence my opportunities for seeing him were less than though he had worked in the prison yard—still his pale face haunted me day and night—and I resolved in the next Sabbath, as he came from Sabbath School, I would send for him and learn his history. It happened, however, that I was out on day in a stone waiting the transaction of some business, and having picked up an old newspaper I had read and re-read, while delayed, until at last my eyes fell upon an advertisement of 'A Lost Boy!' Information wanted of a boy named Arthur——' (I will not give his real name, for perhaps he is still living) and then followed a description of the boy—exactly corresponding with that of the young convict—Arthur Lamb. Then there was somebody cared for the poor boy's, if, indeed, it was him; perhaps a mother, his father, his brothers, and sisters who were searching for him. The advertisement was nearly a year old—yet I doubted not—and as soon as the convicts were locked up I sent for Arthur Lamb. He came, as a matter of course, with the same pale, uncomplaining face, and hopeless gait; thinking, no doubt, that something had gone wrong and had been laid to his charge.

I was examining the Convict's Register, when I looked up where he stood—a perfect image of despair! I asked him his name, He replied 'Arthur?' 'Arthur what?' said I, sternly. 'Arthur——Lamb!' said he hesitatingly.

'Have you a father or mother living?'

His eyes brightened—his voice quivered, as he exclaimed—

'Oh, have you heard from mother? Is she alive?' Is she well?' and the tears, which I had never seen him shed before, ran like raindrops down his cheeks. As he became calm from suspense, I told him I had not heard from his parents, but that I had a paper I wished him to read. He took the advertisement which I had cut from the paper, and as he read it he exclaimed—

'That is me! that is me!' And again sobs and tears choked his utterance.

I assured him the advertisement was all I could tell him about his parents—and that as it requested information, I desired to know what I should write in reply. The advertisement directed information to be sent to the Christian Chronicle, New York.

'Oh, do not write,' said he, 'it will break poor mother's heart.'

I told him I must write—and that it would be a lighter blow to his mother's feelings to know where he was, than the terrible uncertainty which must haunt her mind day and night. So he consented—and taking him to my room, I drew from him its substance, the following story:

His father was a respectable and wealthy mechanic in an interior town of the State of New York. That at the holding of the State Agricultural Fair, in his native town, he got acquainted with two strange boys, older than himself, who persuaded him to run away from home and go to the West. He foolishly consented, with high hopes of happy times, new scenes and great fortune. They came as far as Cleveland, where they remained several days. One morning the other two boys came to his room early, and showed him a large amount of jewelry, &c., which they said they had won at cards during the night. Knowing that he was in need of funds to pay his board, they pressed him to take some of it, for means to pay his landlord. But before he had disposed of any of it they were all three arrested for burglary, and as a portion of the property taken from the store which had been robbed was found in his possession, he too was tried, convicted and sentenced. He had no friends, no money, and dared not write home—so, hope sank within him—he resigned himself to his fate, never expecting to get out of prison, or see his parents again.

Upon inquiring of the two young convicts, who came with him on the same charge, I learned that what Arthur had stated was true and that his only crime was keeping bad company, leaving his home, and unknowingly receiving stolen goods. Questioned separately, they all told the same story and left no doubt in my mind of the boy's innocence. Full of compassion for the unfortunate little fellow, I sat down and wrote a full description of Arthur, his condition and history as I obtained it from him; and pointing the horrors of that horrible place, the hopelessness of his being reformed there—even if guilty—and the probability of his never living out his sentence; and describing the process to be used to gain his pardon. This I sent according to the directions in the advertisement. But week after week passed and no answer came. The boy daily inquired if I had heard from his mother, until at last, hope long deferred seemed to make his heart sick, and again he drooped and pined. At length a letter came—Such a letter! It was from Rev Dr. Bellows, of New York. He had been absent to a distant city, but the moment he read the letter the good man responded. The father of the boy has become almost insane on account of his son's long and mysterious absence; he had left his former place of residence—had moved from city to city—from town, to town—and traveled up and down the country seeking the loved and lost. He had spent the most of a handsome fortune; his wife the boy's mother, was on the brink of the grave, pining for her first born, and would not be comforted. They then lived in a western city, whither they had gone in the hope of finding or forgetting their boy, or that a change of scene might assuage their grief. He thanked me for my letter, which he had sent to the father, and promised his assistance to secure the convict's pardon. This news I gave to Arthur; he seemed pained and pleased; hope and fear, joy and grief, filled his heart, alternately; but from thence his eyes beamed brighter, his step was lighter, and hope seemed to dance in every nerve.

Days passed on and at last a train came to the prison, rushed frantically into the office, demanded to see his boy. "My boy, my boy! Oh, let me see him!" The clerk who knew nothing of the matter, calmly asked for the name of his son. "Arthur——" "No such name on our books—your son cannot be here!" "He is here—show him to me! Here am I, your own father! Why do you mock me." The clerk looked over the letter—saw at once that Arthur, Lamb was the convict wanted, and rang the bell for the messenger. "There is the Warden sir—it was his letter you showed." The old man embraced me and wept like a child. A thousand times he thanked me, and in the name of his wife heaped blessings upon my head. But the rattling of the great iron door and the grating sound of the hinges indicated the approach of Arthur, and I conducted the excited parent into a parlor. I then led the son to his embrace. Such a heart-shriek and pouring from as the old man gave when he beheld the altered countenance of his boy as is stood, clad in the degrading stripes, and hobbling a convict's cap in his hand, I never heard before. I have seen many similar scenes since, and I became inured to them, but this one seems as if it would burst my brain.

I drew up and sighed a petition for the pardon of the young convict—and such a deep and favorable impression did the letter I wrote in answer to the advertisement have upon the Directors, that they readily joined in the petition. Gov. Wood was easily prevailed upon in such a case—and the pardon was granted.

Need I describe the old man's joy? how he laughed and wept! walked and ran—all impatient to see him set free. When the lad came out in citizens' dress, the aged parent was too full for utterance. He hugged the released convict to his bosom and kissed him—wept and prayed! Grasping my hand he tendered me his farm, his gold watch; anything that I would take. Pained at the thought of pecuniary reward, I took the old man's arm in mine, and his son by the hand, and escorted them, to the gate, literally bowing them away.

I never saw them more! But the young man is doing well, and long may he live to reward the filial affection of his parents.

This case may be but one among a hundred, where the innocence of the convict is clear—but even where guilt is clear there should be pity, for youth, and some proper means should be taken to restore them to the paths of rectitude and honor.

A CARD.—To J. Alderman, Esq., South Framingham: I received the morning, as a token of your high professional regard, the speech sets of tea and table spoons, of exquisite pattern and workmanship, so generously tendered me, and for which my warmest acknowledgments are due—which only so, but the kind manner in which you spoke of your daughter's complete restoration from apoleptic fits, through my treatment, when life and hope were flickering, though sure ended by stars of the profession, all of which forms a souvenir dear to my heart. Long may the daughter live to bless her parents with her kindness and smiles.

CHAMBERLIN'S FIRST GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE!

ALMOST EVERY BODY WHO HAS VISITED BOSTON AND NEW YORK DURING the past year has been attracted by, and engaged in the many Gift Enterprises that have been in operation in the most respectable establishments in every city. The results are, that merchants have sold great quantities of goods, and given as much more, and of as good quality, as they would have done by a handsome reduction in prices.

The subscriber, being willing to offer extraordinary inducements to cash purchasers, has purchased a Bankrupt Stock of Shopworn Goods, which he proposes to sell "by order of the Sheriff," but as every article in this stock has been in his store but a few days, and is entirely new and fresh, he will, on Saturday next, December 1st,

.....OPEN THE FIRST.....,

GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE IN BANGOR.

The plan is as follows.—Every person buying goods in our store will be entitled to a check ticket, Four Dollars' worth of goods to entitle to one ticket, and so on in proportion. These tickets are of corresponding numbers marked on the presents given away, and the ticket the purchaser selects the Present bearing the number corresponding to that ticket, he or she will receive. Now some may say that it is impossible to give away so much in proportion to what has been, made by the sale of the goods. To such we shall make up for what is given away by the following statement:

The following are the PRESENTS which we offer:—

1 Doz. Ladies' French Reticules,	from $1,50 to	12 00
1 Doz. Ladies' French Companions,		5 00
2 Doz. Portemonaies, in Pearl, Shell, Kid and Velvet,		3,00
1 Doz. Ladies' French Morocco Traveling and Shopping Bags,		2 00
18 Spanish Fans, in white and colored Ivory, Sandal-wood, &c.,		3,00
22 Hair Brushes, with Shell, Pearl, Whalebone and Carved Backs,
2 Doz. Ladies' French Pocket and Memo. Books,		3,00
1 Doz. Lubin's Extracts,
French Cologne, in Quart, Pint, and Half Pint bottles,
Ladies' Back Combs, in Shell, Horn, and Buffalo Horn,		3,00
25 Packages Needles, best quality,

All the above Presents are desirable, and a great number very valuable. Remember that CHAMBERLIN'S GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE commences on Saturday next, Dec. 1st, at

TO THE DAILY WHIG AND COURIER

LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

ARRIVAL OF THE

Star of the West.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.

The Star of the West from San Juan, arrived here at 3 o'clock with California dates of the 5th Nov., reports the Isthmus free from Cholera. The Uncle Sam (which arrived at San Francisco with nearly 1,000 passengers which left New York on the 5th, had not a single case on board.

The Star of the West left Punta Arenas on the 15th Nov., touched at Key West on the evening of the 24th.

Steamer Cortez arrived up 21st, Sonora 20th, Uncle Sam Nov 31.

No news of importance from California.—Indian troubles were growing serious. Puget Sound to Shasta Butte the whites had made a simultaneous attack upon the Indians, and massacred a large number. Volunteers were turning out in all directions, and the New York troops under Major Fitzgerald had turned out in pursuit. A Seattle all the tribes north of Columbia River had confederated and swore to exterminate the Americans. A band of fifteen hundred attacked a small force at New York troops at Puget Sound, under Major Heller, and forced them to retreat. The latter had been reinforced by nine companies of volunteers, hastily out by Gov. Curry, and supplied with ammunition by the sloop of War Decatur and cutter Jefferson Davis, and was about to assume the offensive.

A stock of the Distillery of Messrs. Burnett & Ashfield, at San Francisco, exploded, steaming and scalding a dozen men, and setting fire to the premises, which were entirely destroyed.

A severe gale occurred at San Francisco Oct. 30th, doing damage to the piers and small craft in the harbor.

Business in San Francisco during the fortnight had not been very active but was improving, close but quiet; an improvement in domestic liquors had taken place in consequence of the destruction of the large distillery of Burnett & Ashfield, and a large advance for American brandy had been refused. Gallego and Hardit $15; butter 60; pork 21; polished sugar 13; Sydney coal 17.50.

The specie shipped per Echo's was nearly $2,200,000 from the Isthmus.

Walker was in full possession of Nicaragua. Col Wheeler, the American minister, had publicly acknowledged on the part of the United States the independence and sovereignty of the New Republic, and assured its Government of the kindest wards and well wishes entertained by the Chief Magistrate of the United States towards it.

General Carrel was detected in a treasonable correspondence with some of the officers of the State government, tried by a Court Martial and shot in the plaza in Grenada on the 17th inst., an hour after his arrest; the Court Martial was composed entirely of Americans. Other arrests had been made, but no names are given. The death of Carrel was acquiesced in by Rivas the newly elected President.

A duty of 20 per cent ad valorem had been declared by the Nicaragua Government, upon all foreign imports to be paid in coin.

Nebraska Election.

OTTAWA, Nov. 29.

The election in Nebraska Territory for a Delegate to Congress is still in doubt. The compilation of the returns thus far received are in favor of Bennett, anti-slavery, over Chapman, the pro-slavery candidate.

Matters at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.

More than 50 members of Congress have arrived. The Republicans and Fusionists among them have already consulted together and expressed their readiness to meet in caucus for the nomination of officers of the House with all the opponents of the Administration, irrespective of any distracting political issues. The anti-slavery and Americans will, it is said, positively refuse to meet their non-intervention brethren in caucus as a distinctive party, while several democrats threaten that if in the democratic caucus the support of the Kansas and Nebraska act shall be insisted on as a test of orthodoxy they will withdraw from the caucus.

Jos. Reese, formerly chief telegraph operator in this city, and the oldest operator in the country, died here this afternoon.

The following resolution was adopted:

That a Convention for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the Presidency and Vice Presidency, be held at Philadelphia, Feb. 22, 1856, composed of delegates elected by subordinate Councils, one from each Congressional District, and two from each State.

Universal Cough Mixture

IS a safe and effectual Remedy for Coughs of every description, whether of Children or Adults, of recent or long standing.

PREPARED ONLY BY

REV. WALTER CLARK,

Sole Proprietor, Connellsville, Maine.

Within the last twelve months millions of bottles of the Universal Cough Mixture have been sold in the State of Maine alone, and everywhere its extraordinary power in relieving and curing the cases of the Cough and Lungs, is gratefully acknowledged; and especially in cases of Consumption and lung shaking Coughs, it speedily allays the unpleasant sensation in the throat which excites coughing; it promotes free and easy expectoration, and by removing the exciting cause of the cough, it frequently enables the sufferer to enjoy natural and refreshing sleep, who for weeks has been deprived of that blessing.

☞ Sold in final bottles, 25 cents each; large bottles, each containing the quantity of four small ones, 75 cents each.

Extract of a letter from Daniel Adams, Esq., to Persis Adams, Maine.

Farmington, Me., 1855.

To Rev. Walter Clark:—Dear Sir,—A bottle of Cough Mixture which you left with me, in 1854, I have several times used in my family, and found it to be a perfect and safe remedy for Coughs. And as a third time, I find it has effected a perfect cure in my wife. She had been afflicted with a cough for a long standing, attended with tightness of the chest and shortness of breath, so that she was laid aside from business, increased she large bottle, and before she had taken one third part, was perfectly cured, and has had no cough since. She says she has the best medicine in the world, and cannot be recommended too highly.

JESSE ADAMS.

From Mrs. Fletcher Chick, agent for Perth, Dixmont, Maine.

Dear Sir,—A bottle of the most extraordinary cure have been effected by your Cough Mixture, in this place. Several who had a long and distressing cough, and others who have been afflicted with bleeding and relieving sufferers, have been speedily cured by the Universal Cough Mixture.

From Mrs. Hubbard, Thorndike, Me.

February 1, 1854.

To Rev. Walter Clark—Dear Sir,—This certifies that I have used one bottle of your Universal Cough Mixture for a distressing cough and soreness in the lungs. I had previously tried many kinds of medicines, and had been under the care of several physicians, without obtaining the least relief, happily your Universal Cough Mixture was recommended to me, I procured a bottle, which I began to take according to directions on the label, by which in a few days I was entirely cured.

KENNEDY'S

MEDICAL DISCOVERY

The Greatest of the Age!

MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures EVERY KIND OF HUMOR, from the worst Scrofula down to a common pimple. He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two. He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.

Two to three bottles will cure the system of bile.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of sore mouth and stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst cases of erysipelas.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humors in the eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running in the ears and blotches in the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ring worm.

Six to eight bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate cases of rheumatism.

Three to six bottles are warranted to cure salt-rheum.

Five to eight bottles will cure the very worst cases of Scrofula.

A chemist is always employed from the first bottles, and a perfect cure warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day as that a common weed, growing upon the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is no fiction, but a fact. If you have a humor it has cured. There are no ifs or ands about it, nothing upon ears but not yours. He has peddled out a thousand bottles of it in the county of Boston, and knows the cure is not in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. He gave it to children a year old, to old people of sixty, and has seen puny looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.

To those who are subject to sick headache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it have been costive for years, and have been regulated by it. Where the bodily is sound it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed—they always disappear in from four days to a week.—There is never a bad result from it—on the contrary, when that feeling is gone, you will feel yourself like a new person. I could some of the most extravagent encomiums of it that ever man listened to.

No cough of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get and enough of it.

ROXBURY, Sept. 19, 1853.

This is to certify that H. HAY, Druggist, Portland, is the duly AUTHORISED GENERAL AGENT for my MEDICAL DISCOVERY for the STATE OF MAINE, and that he is supplied with the GENUINE, direct from me Laboratory.
